February 5, 1981

Dear Ed,

Time is running, and when I started this letter, I realized that it is even too late to say something about the new year! In the meantime you will probably be back from Paris. So I think there is not much left to us than run after the time, which at the moment means for me to write reminder to those authors of the Heuristics book who have not yet completed their articles. Although Marina, Walter and I still have some work with the articles already received, we now begin to worry about those contributions not yet received. Since we consider your contribution as very central for the book, we would be very happy if we would receive your article as soon as possible or at least to hear from you about the date you expect to be able to send us your manuscript.

Sincerely yours,

(PD Dr. Rudolf Groner)